hose being integrally connected to a flange (Fig 1 where (20) connects to (10)) being disposed in said body; said injection nozzle includes a plurality of holes (66) disposed in a radial direction at a front end and the injection nozzle being connected to a connecting member (Fig 1, 2; see 36) in a spiral manner; and said air pump is installed at a lower side of the entrance/exit passage of said body (14, 16; Fig 1; wherein the air pump is leaving the body on the lower side).

6. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Liu et al (6447490). Liu et al discloses a hand operable portable irrigator (Fig 1) comprising: a suction hose (8); an air pump (7); an injection nozzle (Fig 4); wherein a liquid supplying body (9) is rigidly connected to said suction hose, injection nozzle, and air pump, the liquid supplying body having an entrance/exit passage (11); said suction hose being integrally connected to a flange (Fig 3) being disposed in said body; said injection nozzle includes a plurality of holes (15; Fig 4) disposed in a radial direction at a front end and the injection nozzle being connected to a connecting member (16, Fig 4; 12, Fig 3) in a spiral manner; and said air pump is installed at a lower side of the entrance/exit passage of said body (Fig 3).
